The right to be informed:

If you ask us, we must tell you if we are collecting or using your personal data.

If we are collecting or using your personal data, you have:

The right of access to your personal data

You have the right to view the personal data that we hold about you, to receive a copy of the data and to be given more information about the data including any transfer to countries who do not fall under the requirements of the GDPR.

Some information we hold cannot be accessed in this way. If you ask for information that is not available, there may be other ways of accessing it and we can help you.

To have access to your personal data we will need to collect details of what you want and in the first instance you can contact the Data Protection Officer whose details can be found at the end of this Privacy Notice. You will also need to supply us with standard information to verify your identity.

Other rights

You also have rights to ask us to correct inaccurate personal data, to ask us to stop using it or to object to us using it. For some data you may have to write to ask us to erase it, or to provide it in an electronic format that you can give to someone else. For some personal data if we are subjecting it to automated decision making then you have the right to object to this and request that a person is involved.

You will be given full details of these rights if you request access to your personal data or you can ask the Data Protection Officer.

Access to personal data about your child(ren)

If your child(ren) are in Year 7 then we will usually assume that they are not able to make decisions about their personal data. The right to access the personal data of children under 12 is usually given to parents or a guardian. To access the data about your child(ren) you will need to follow the same process as you would to access your own data.

If your child(ren) are in Year 7 and they request access to their personal data, we will normally ask you to confirm that you agree for them to receive it. You can ask us to provide the personal data to you and you can then discuss it with your child(ren).

Once students reach Year 8 then we will normally assume that they are able to make decisions about their own personal data. In some cases, we may judge that the student is not sufficiently mature to make those decisions.

This means that you will no longer have an automatic right to access the personal data relating to your child(ren). Instead your child(ren) will have to give their consent for the data to be released.

You should be clear that if your child(ren) do not give their consent then we will not be able to release their personal data to you. It is also important to recognise that forcing someone to disclose personal data against their wishes is a criminal offence.

There may be occasions where we need to provide personal data about your child(ren) without their consent. These are likely to occur if there is a concern about their safety. We may also release personal data if their behaviour creates concern for the safety or progress of others.

We will still need to ask your permission for your child(ren) to take part in some school and extra-curricular activities. The requirement for this permission overrides the protection of their personal data.

We are required to provide you with an annual report of the progress your child(ren) has/have made at school. We will offer you the opportunity to come into school to discuss this report with their teachers and other members of staff.

At the start of each school year we will ask your child(ren) if they are willing for these reports to be sent more often, but they do not have to give this permission.

The school has the responsibility to ensure that your personal data is protected.
